

Uncovering Secrets of Successful Cross-Sector Collaborations

Designed and facilitated by Dr Sandra Mandic, PhD, PMP

Many challenges faced by modern society require extensive partnerships and collaborations.
Building skills for working across sectors is a necessity in the 21st century.

Cross-sector collaborations are also at the core of addressing complex transport challenges.
Transforming transport systems requires building bridges between research, policy and practice, involving individuals, teams and organisations with diverse backgrounds.

Workshop Objectives

This workshop will offer practical guidance for successfully engaging in cross-sectoral work.

Introduce a framework for planning and managing cross-sector collaborations

Share insights from a world-class example of a successful cross-sector research collaboration

Provide an opportunity for participants to reflect on and share their experiences with cross-sectoral work

Target Audience

Relevant to professionals from various sectors who are interested in or participating in cross-sectoral initiatives, including researchers, academics, policy makers, practitioners, consultants, programme leaders and project and programme managers
