How to Write Your Thesis

Designed and facilitated by Dr Sandra Mandic, PhD, PMP

Submission of a thesis is a usual academic requirement for most postgraduate research programmes.

Putting together a thesis is a challenging and often stressful learning task for most students. Timely and effective guidance can help students improve the quality of their thesis, reduce their stress and reduce feedback-related workload for academic supervisors.

This course will provide guidance to postgraduate students on how to write different components of their thesis and put their thesis together.

Specific Course Objectives*

- Discuss a thesis structure
- Provide guidance for writing different components of the thesis and putting together a thesis
- Discuss standards of academic writing style
- Offer tips for getting feedback and dealing with revisions
